Representative Siner of Virginia, said his State had long been committed to cheap transportation, and would endorse any and every proposition having that object in view. He was anxious this meeting should pledge tiself to support only such measures of the Committee on Railways and Canals as shall represents all the interests of the county, not poully the James River and Kanawba Canal, what all other projects for cheap transports.

Representative Hurlbut, of Illinois, member of the Committee on Railways and Canals said he came here to receive infor-mation. There were before the committee prejects involving an expenditure of one hundred and thirty million dollars. All of them had their friends while many of the projects were local or sectional. I waited long and patiently to see it appear in your paper, that it came not, and neither have mine eyes beheld those $40 which is, or rather was, the price of my isboe. The literature was aeither published nor paid for nor returned to me, and it is here that I might establish good grounds for complaint, but I forbear to do anything rashly, or to bestow upon you that moral chastisement, which you so richly merit and deserve. It argues well for the times that there are yet a few of us that can rise superior to the base and vulgar consideration of money when the occasion requires it. I am one of that few. I am one of the seem of stamp this is me unkindest cut. I enclosed a stamp to prepay your answer. Where is that stamp? Where are those stamps?

Out of our treming millions population—to speak in a national sense—out of those millions there are, it is safe to say, as many as 20,000 contributors who may each have sent you a stamp under circumstances similar to, if not identical with, my case. Will you alcase render an account to those disappointed and outraged victims? Will you please do these injured people the favor to please do these injured people the favor to compute the aggregate amount due them for stamps retained? I am unable to cipher it.
One, you know, cannot be a born poet and be also a mathematician; but one may be a Bunday editor and also be a good postage-stamp actuary, and therefore please postage-stamp scuary, and also be a good postage-stamp scuary, and therefore please step to the blackboard and do the sum, that the deceived and bilketed may know how good have them. I tell you that the course you have them I tell you that the course paper, and sooner or later will work its utter paper, and sooner or later will work its utter paper. The time will come and that soon paper, and sooner or later will work its utter with the time will come, and that soon, when the rising poets of free America will durn their backs upon you in contempt. It is but fair and honorable to give you warning in time, and this I do grituitously. Of a poverty, yea an utter famine, of original poets y shall ultimately come to your columns, you more will be responsible. This is all I drawe to say.

He stood aside, however, and silently looked on as that turkey succumbed to the ravenous appetite of the gentleman from Red River country. He asw loaves of nice white pies, cakes and jelly disappeared with fearful rapidity. As John gave the turkey a finishing tooch, having cleared the dish of the last vestige, the landlord—who had been wondering all this time where his profit would come in for this dinner—grew courts, and will presence until now, and was somewhat starled, but his reply showed that he was equal to the emergency. It seems that the "agents" who come here from States further west, to entice negroes to go to Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas, etc., do not conflue their falsehoods to extravagant representations of wages, productions, comforts, etc., in the States to which they want to draw the negroes, but they grossly and wickedly slander the States from which they take them.

The Chattanooga Commercial of the 3d

they take them.

The Chattanooga Commercial of the 3d instant reports an agent who passed through its city the other day, having in charge about forty negroes from near Macon, as having said that through portions of Georgia and Alabama in which he had traveled, "great detilution prevails among the colored population of the 3d instant reports an agent who passed through its city that the colored population of the colored population Alabama in which he had traveled, "great destitution prevails among the colored population. Some of them are living by camping out and subsisting on the mast, and in some places acorns are selling for fifty cents per bushel. In Alabama, some of them, old and young, are in a state of nudity, and subsist on hickory suts and turnip salad. Within the next ten days three thousand of them will pass through our city to Memphis, for Arkansas, while a great many are going the beautiful and the substitution of the way of the substitution of the subst

West."
That this "agent" (who, of course, gets so much per head for every negro decoyed West,) may have found idle, worthless and varrant colored people in a destitute condition, and subsisting on unwholesome food in Georgia and Alabama, is quite probable. But wall that class do any better farther West, unless they go to work? Can they not at least secure enough to eat here on the worst managed plantation? The acorn story is supremely ridiculous, and prehape was suggested by the fact, hately noticed in the papers, that some of the negroes about Union Springs, in Alabams, were gathering acorns and selling them at twenty-five cents per bushel for fattening hogs. No negro who has fifty cents, is fool enough to buy a bushel of acorns with it for food, when the same sum would buy half a bushel of corn, and we do not believe that reachly foolish enough to believe the fact of the fool of the fact of buy half a bushel of corn, and we do not believe that people foolish enough to believe the story can be found in any part of the country.

Such "agents," like the carpet-baggers, will soon be found out by the negroes, by bitter experience, and then their race, too, will be run .- Columbus Enquirer and Sun.

The issue is unsettled. R. M. T. Hunter appears to have lead. Mr. Hunter was the Confederate Secretary of State, and one of the ablest of our old would be a striking accessory to that dramati picture scene in the scating of Mr. Stephen the ex-Vice President of the Confederacy. Verily, strange things are happening Congress packed with the highest officers of the Confederacy as its ablest statesmanship is no trivial or unsuggestive spectacle.

Our correspondent is mistaken. The forcible and eloquent presentation of the truth is the best way to defeat iniquitous legislation.

The programme of submissive silence un der contemplated wrong is criminal. We need bold ringing protests against every opssion, and scathing expositions of ever legislative outrage in prospect. And the South means to south men to Congress who can perform this role. We shall gladly re cognize, report and appland every stand taken by our Georgia Congressmen for the right and against the wrong. Mr. Stephens' great speech on the Civil Rights Bill is in point. It did good. And more of such speeches would have helped the cause.

But, as we wrote last week, dealers in cotton must not be misled by this apparent falling off in the supply Our correspondent, in writing of our for we know of many large parties who Georgis Congressmen not speaking, says have not sold a bale of their crops; and that speeches against the Civil Rights bill do many persons are waiting for fifteen cents

The market, this week, has been steady with large sales. Sales of spot cotton 18,000 bales, at a rise of 3.8 of a cent in the price. Contracts have been generally steady; sales 120,000 bales, at a rise of 1-8 of a cent. The receipt of 65 00) bales for the first two days was unexpectedly large, and caused an uneasy feeing in both spots and contracts. caming holders to rearrier had held too long, but the receipt for the part few day being so small, only 73,000, gave them renewed confidence. As we said last week, the market is now almost entirely under control of the receipts, and the dealer who has the most correct idea of receipts, for three months to come, will make the most money. LIVERPOOL.

The market has been generally steady with larger sales, and no change in the price of spot cotton, but future shipments have risen & a cent. The causes were the influence of smaller receipts and the rise in New York. The time has been when this market governed the markets of New York and the year with expressions of gratitude for the Southern ports, but for the present the cotprosperity of the past and the favor of the ton trade of the whole world is so much unpeople. Since January, 1873, one year ago, der the influence of our American crop, the circulation of The Daily Constitution whether it will be 3,500,000 or 4,500,000 (for land see closed in another in the assistance)

When the market is active they sell with reluctance; and when depres ion sets in they press sales : and, as they are supposed to be well posted on crop prospects. &c, this wavering policy begets the im pression that they have no settled opinion As a u-uil deduction from heavy receipts the tendency, at the moment, is toward larger crop estimates.

A few weeks ago the crop estimates em anating from American authorities, rangin. from 3,500,000 to 3,750,000 bales, obtained for a time some degree of confidence, and come in somewhere between those figures calculations on the subject, and few will com-

Now, with all due defference to what supposed to be "American Authorities," they are often very greatly at fault. Last year the crop turned out fully 500,000 bales larger than the New Orleans Cotton Exchange etimate, and this year it is very likely to be 600,000 bales larger than their estimate Last year, early in the season we thought the New Orleans merchants to know accounts of the crops; and perhaps we were influenced somewhat by them, but as early as March our estimate, as published in these articles, was 3,900,000 bales, thich was very near the mark. Whilst this year we started out with an estimate of 4,250.000 bales, and still maintain it, and, it we should come near the mark we hope our European friends will give us some credit for

Our means of obtaining a correct knowledge of the cotton crop is probably not surpassed by even the agricultural bureau at Washing-

The crop of this country is likely to be about the same as last year, or say 500,000 bales. This cotton is long staple, and the bales heavy, averaging over 500 pounds.

Taking the cars early in the morning, we reached Ayr in two hours, and, having hired an open carriage, drove out to the cottage and Alloway kirk, and Burns' An hour's ride brought us to morning, we reached Ayr is two hours, and having hired un open carriage, drove out to the cottage and Alloway kirk, and Burns' monument and the "Ranks and brass of bonny Deon." Verily, the first mentioned attraction had need to be recommended by great qualities of interest, independent of itself. A more forlorn, dilapidased "olsy bigging" it has been seldom my fortune to see. The house was a one-story howel, consisting of two apartments, the kitchen and the "spence," or sitting room. Here was born Robert Burna, on the 28th of January, 1760. In a recess, in the kitchen is still shown a bedstead, whereon the poet is said to have been born. The house itself is used as a sort of public house, although I think its main support is in the sale of various articles of wood-work, such as boxes, baskets, canes, &c., &c., all made out of wood cut in the neighborhood. I bought a photographic album bound in boards made out of wood cut on the hanks of the Doon. In this apartment were deposited various articles appropriate to the place, viz : Editions of the Poet's works ; a snuff-box, made from the wood-work of Alloway Kirk; a portrait of the Poet, etc. The most interesting relic is a Bible presented by the Poet to his Highland Mary. By the way the mansion-house of Coilsfield, immortalized by Burns, under the name of the Castle of Montgomery, is the quondam residence of Burns inammorats, quondam residence of Burna' inammorats, above named, who was a dairymaid in the house. The humble maiden plighted her troth for marriage to the ploughman poet. Just before the marriage was to take place Mary set forth upon a visit to her relatives in Argylshire. Before parting they met one Sabbath afternoon, and, "standing one on each aide of a brook they lawed."

A military band passing called me to the window of the hotel in time to see a volunteer company march by. The air was a genuine eld Scotch song—"The Minstre Boy to the Wars has Gone," and the music wonderfully inspiring and really beauti

A ride upon the railroad of twenty-five minutes brought us to Hamilton, a flourishing Scotch town of 10,000 inhibitants. Here we made application to the Chamberlain to visit the Palace of the Duke of Hamilton and Brandon which standards are paid to and Brandon, which stands on a plain be-tween the town and the river Clyde. The front (I write from a descriptive account of e palace) is a specimen of the enriche printbian order, with a projection the palace) is a specimen of the enriched Corintbian order, with a projecting pillared portico, after the style of the Temple of Jupiter Stator at Rome, 264 feet in length and 60 feet in height. The pillars of the portico are twelve in number and twenty-four feet high, fully ten feet in span and each cut out of a solid block of stone. Each of these blocks required thirty horses to draw it to its posi-

The interior is fully worthy of this noble outside appearance. Richly carved ceilings, magnificent works of art, portraits, paintings, gosgeous furniture—all go to make up a palace of the first magnitude. The picture gellery is 120; feet long, twenty

At one end stands a splendid throne flanked upon each side by porphyry busts of the two first Roman Emperors, Augustus and Tiberius Cæsar. The other end is filled up by a magnificent door of black marble, the pediments of which is supported by porphyry columns. On the walls are paintings of exquisite execution—principally family portraits. There is, however, one of Rucens—
"Daniel in the Lion's Den."

It would weary my reader inexpressibly to be bored with a guide-book recapitulation of all the many splendid rooms in this magnifi-cent palace, or of the gorgeours furniture which fills it. WHY WILL YE DIE?—Death, or what is worse, is the inevitable result of continued suspension of the menstrual flow. It is a condition which should not be trifled with. Just before the marriage was to take place Mary set forth upon a visit to her relatives in Argylshire. Before parting they met one Sabbath afternoon, and, "standing one on each side of a brook, they laved their hands in the stream and holding a Bible between them, pronounced a vow of eternal constancy. And then poor Mary went upon her visit and never returned; and Burns wrote in memory of her the most beautiful lines he ever composed, beginning:

"Tace lingering Star of lessening ray," etc.

Notwithstanding the secresy with which the committee conducts its investigations, the testimony taken by the sub-committee of Congress is overwhelming on certain points against Judge Durell.

First—The charge of intoxication, or the too free use of alcohelic spirits, both on and off the bench, is sustained by the positive testimony of an ex-judge of the Supreme Court of the United States, an ex-chief justice of the State, several members of the bar and many citizens.

Judge John A. Campbell testified to the virulent, rude and insulting conduct of Judge Durell on the occasion of a certain trial, when he (Judge Campbell) was denounced by Judge D. as a hoary rubel, who ought to be hung. by Judge D. as a hoary rebel, who ought to be hung.

Ex-Chief Justice Merrick testified that he had been frequently treated by Judge Durell in a violent and insulting manner, so as to satisfy his mind that the judge was under the influence of stimulants. He deposed that he had ever seen him in the cars in an intoxicated condition. The purport of several lawyer's depositions was to the same effect; they had seen Judge Durell so demean himself on the bench that the hypothesis of inebriety or the influence of a recent debauch alone could explain his conduct. There was also positive steatimony of citizens that they had seen the judge in the streets in an inebriated condition.

On the other hand, there were witnesses, among whom were Messrs. President Georgia Real Estate and Immigration Company, Atlanta or Augusta, Georgia,

Editor of the Enterprise and Mountaineer—
DEAR SIR: Perhaps some of your numerous readers would be interested in a line from the gold field of Greenville County, S. C. With your permission will say that we left our mountain home a few weeks since, in company, with Captain Oram, an Englishman by birth, and practical miner and mining engineer, late from the gold fields of Idsho, Nevada, Utah and other mining regions of the great West, with a view of exploring some sections in South Carolina. We spent a day at Greenville, and the Captain was much pleased with your beautiful city, and delight. CORPORATORS. Hon. WILLIAM SCHLEY, Savannah, Georgia. ROBERT SCHL. Y. Eeq., angusta, Georgia. Col. JAMES GABDMER, Augusta, Georgia.

MANAGERS. A. M. WALLACE, Atlanta, Georgia. H. L. WILS N. Atlanta, Georgia. J. D WADDELL, Atlanta, Georgia.

President Ga. R. E. & I. Co., Atlanta or Augusta, G

After being highly entertained and adding slew gay young gents to our party, the next morning found us "on the wing" for the gold region, and a few hours' ride brought us to the fertile farm of the venerable John L. Westmoreland, on Beaverdam creek, fourteen miles north of the city of Greenville, where the gold is found. Beaverdam seems to be on the gold belt passing from the well known fields of Hall and Habersham counties, Georgia, to those of Burke and McDowell counties in North Carolina, and promises fair to be equally remunerative.

After spending some time in exploring, digging, washing and breaking rock, the Captain expressed himself highly gratified, when he observed the amount of gold taken to the honse in the pan, and said, "capital blended with skill and energy will develop much wealth."
